Dusty dark florals, crushed stone, wild blueberries, hints of confectioner's sugar and flowery undergrowth lift up as the 2019 Merlot Valentino slowly blossoms in the glass. This is youthfully poised yet undeniably elegant, with velvety waves of ripe red and blue fruits coasting along a core of vibrant acidity, as purple-tinged inner florals form toward the close. You hardly notice the grippy young tannins that are slowly taking hold until the very end, as a glycerol-like coating of wild berries and minerals slowly melts away from the palate. The 2019 is not for the faint of heart, but it is an incredibly enjoyable glass of Sicilian Merlot.
