The 2015 Amarone della Valpolicella Classico lifts up with a dusty display of black cherries, cinnamon and clove, complicated by hints of mentholated herbs. The textures are silky, giving way to a more savory expression of Amarone with tart wild berries and exotic spice. This tapers off perfumed, precise and fresh, making the 2015 a perfect candidate both at and away from the dinner table. This is very nicely balanced, but it never fully comes together. A year or two of cellaring may bring forward more depth.
